THURSDAY MORNING. OCTOBER 18, 1860.

English Statistics of Drunkenness. Some idea of the amount of intoxicating drinks consumed in this country may be formed from the amount of revenue raised by the Government from this The returns for the last year have just been published. The amount received the Government on spirits, wines, mail hops, for the last year, reached the enormous sum of $100,982,-400! and all this in a country with less than 30,000,000 of inhabitants. These are frightful facts. The duty, indeed, is very heavy, so that the quantity consumed may be less than if the duty was less. Indeed, at first view it would seem as if the Government were disposed, if possible, to stop the consumption by the imposition of duties, which are now so great, that, under almost any ordinary circumstances, they would be prohibitory. Every gallon of spirits made in the country pays $2 to $2 50 to the Government sumption, and the Government manifestly presume on the imbibing propensity of the people. I am very sure we would have another "whiskey rebellion" in our per gallon more, to help to meet the expenses of the Chinese war. During the past year, there was duty paid to the Government on 6,775,911 gallons of foreign wine, and 4,909,847 gallons of forpared with the demonstration at the London docks. I visited these docks a few days since, and I was in one single wine vault which covered five acres of ground, 000 casks of port wine alone, each cask containing about 120 gallons. But there were also several other vaults of almost equal extent, while acres upon acres were covered with casks, along the docks and through the open spaces. And the classes of the community. and Wales; but there are in London alone | Sing Sing. 18,853 of them! If the population of of London be 3,000,000, which is, perhaps, a little over the mark, that would give one gin-shop to about every one hundred and sixty persons, including women and children, while the number of butchers' and bakers' shops together do not amount to over one third the number of a gin-shop for every 160 persons, including women and children, there are one butcher-shop and one baker shop to each 960 persons.

In the last year, 89,903 persons were charged with drunkenness, of whom 24,-395 were women; of this number charged, 56.161 were punished by the magistrates for being drunk, or drunk and disorderly. Of those punished, 10,486 were women.

In 306 cases on coroners' inquests during the year, a verdict was found of 'Died from excessive drinking. 270,000 persons were counted entering fourteen of the principal gin-palaces of London in one week, which would give an average of nearly 40,000 daily attendants at only fourteen out of the 18,853 in London!

Such a state of things produces its legitimate and inevitable results-most removed, crimes of every kind would be vastly diminished, the community be saved enormous expense, and by far the greatest obstacle to the moral and religious improvement of the people would be taken out of the way. It is a fact, ascertion, that of the population of London, at | Or dying of the dreadful, beauteous sight, least three-fifths, or 1,800,000, seldom or An angel came to us, and we could bear never enter any place of religious worship; and while less than 500,000 of the population are at the house of God on any Sabbath evening, there are, at the same children drinking in the numerous gin Alas! we think not that we daily see, and beer shops of the metropolis.

Proceedings were taken against 24,-636 prostitutes, and the number still at large was 28,760. During the past year there were 19,846 coroners' inquests, the cost of which to the country was $283,-000! There were 53 capital convictions, of which 16 were for murder, and 11 were executed.

The constabulary force in England and Wales consists of 20,356 persons, exclusive of 138 detective officers, The cost of maintaining this force is $6,945,-581! Independent of this sum, it is estimated, by the prison-inspectors, that the criminals of the kingdom impose on the community an actual charge of at least $48,000,000 annually-a sum nearly equal to the whole annual expenditure of the American Government!

THE SHOWER BATH IN SING SING .- A Horrid Punishment.—The tortures of Sing Sing prison exceed by far the punishments inflicted in Neapolitan dungeons, if the details of the "showering" of one desperado there, recently, are true. It was Tom Kelly a noted ruffian, who suffered.
